THE KATYS WIN.

They Play all Around the St. Louis Clothing Co. Club at Association Park.

It was a very pretty game part of the time, that at Association park yesterday afternoon, between the M. K. & T. club and the St. Louis Clothing Co. club, and resulted in the defeat of the latter by a score of fifteen to nine.

The M. K. & T. won the toss and chose the inns. Cobine was the first at bat and flew out to Buckley at third. Denny got his base on balls, stole second and went home on Jacob's base hit. May and Johns struck out.

In the last half of the first, Roach got in a two bagger but the others went out in one, two, three order and left him on second.

In the first half of the fourth the "Katy" knocked out four runs and it looked like they were winners.

The St. Louis boys were somewhat rattled until they came to the bat in the last half. Then it seemed like everybody had it in for Tyler. Base hits, passed balls and errors were thick and they counted and the Clothing club tied the score. Not a tally was made then up to the seventh inning. Stryker exchanged places with Tyler in the fifth and from that time out pitched a rattling good game. In the seventh the "Katy" made two and the Clothing boys two, and in the eighth the "Katy" jumped onto Swearingen again and managed to get in six runs and put in two more in the ninth. The St. Louis made a run in the eighth and one in the ninth, closing the game.

The only brilliant feature of the game was the deep field one-handed catch of what looked like a safe two bagger by Denny at short in the last half of the second inning. There was quite a large crowd present and all enjoyed themselves immensely. Miles umpired the game and although his decisions were a little off on one or two occasions, he was on the whole very satisfactory.

CANADA'S PREMIER DYING.

The Venerable Sir John A. MacDonald Very Near Death's Door.

The Denial a Few Days Ago That His Illness Was Serious Unhappily Too Hopeful—Attending Physicians Abandon All Hope.

Ottawa, Ontario, May 30.—At midnight to-night the latest advices from the residence of Sir John A. MacDonald are that he is dying and may expire before daylight.

The recent report that Sir John A. MacDonald's illness was not dangerous was unfortunately too sanguine. The Canadian premier's illness was such that last night his physicians abandoned hope of his recovery.

Sir John caught a severe cold last Saturday and was confined to his bed from Monday. Inflammation of the lungs developed surely, but until yesterday nothing critical was feared. Last night, however, the disease took a bad turn and paralysis developed. At 10 o'clock Dr. Powell was sent for in consultation. When he left the sick room he said: "Sir John's speech is gone and the hemorrhage has extended to his brain. His condition is quite hopeless."

Sir John's condition created a great sensation in political circles. As soon as it became known the house adjourned.

When a premier dies the ministry, according to English parliamentary practice, is dissolved. Sir John Thompson, it was said last night, would in all likelihood be called upon to form a ministry in the event of Sir John's death.

Sir Hector Langevin and nearly all the cabinet ministers are at Ferncliffe. Lady MacDonald remained in the sick room until 4 o'clock this morning, when she took a short walk on the lawn. She looked very pale and her face showed traces of great suffering and mental agony.

The following bulletins were issued 6 a. m.—The premier passed the night quietly and had short sleeps at intervals. He does not suffer any pain. He is perfectly conscious in so far that he can make his wants known. His speech is yet in abeyance. He has taken milk at intervals throughout the night.

9 a. m.—Dr. Montague says Sir John has just taken a turn for the worse.

At 10 a. m. Dr. Powell said that Sir John was, if anything, growing weaker, but that he still retained consciousness. At that hour he could make known his wants, but vainly tried to speak.

At 10 o'clock it was reported that Sir John was dead, but this was afterwards denied in an official bulletin.

THE FORMER CANADIAN'S CAREER.

On the 11th day of January, 1890—a year and a half ago—while the frosts were eager and the deep Northern snows wrapped Canada like a blanket, Sir John A. MacDonald celebrated his 75th birthday. Congratulations poured in from all parts of Canada; wreaths and testimonials, and the liberal, buxom people over whose fortunes he had watched so long and well, gave him every assurance of their respect and love. Babes had been born and grown to stalwart men during the long term Sir John A. MacDonald had stood the foremost Canadian. He was then robust, hale and promised many years of useful life. To-day he lies dying at his home in Ottawa.

There has never existed so striking a figure in Canadian politics—no one who has served so faithfully, so long and so much to his country's purpose. John A. MacDonald was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1815. While the young MacDonald was but five years old, his family came to Canada. His education began and finished at the Royal Grammar school of Kingston, where his family resided. After his graduation the coming statesman, like many another before him, embraced the law, being called to the practice of that difficult profession at the age of 21. He soon became distinguished and after some eight years of practice was made council of the crown.

But his tastes flowed broader than the chafed and narrowed confines of the law. His bent was to deal with peoples and their destinies. He came into the Canadian parliament in 1844—three years after the union of Upper and Lower Canada. He came at a stirring but tangled time. There was much of moment and many a question of pith to settle and to answer. He bent his energies to the task, and, although the conservative spirit of the people around him was in no breakneck hurry to recognize genius or worth in one so young, it came quickly to the discovery of MacDonald.

Your true Canadian, like your Briton, moves slowly in reposing trust and confidence. Men in politics are forced to hard and toil burdened novitiates which wrinkle their faces and whiten their beards, before they are regarded as old enough and sufficiently experienced to be entrusted with a public affair of any weight. The fact that he was never doomed to this, but was early received and roundly and abundantly trusted, tells far better than any other, the force and power of the genius of the dead premier.

To unmistakable talent MacDonald added the genius of industry of courage, and from the ranks of his party he soon fought his way to the chief command. Dates are tiresome and for the main part of but little use in sketches like this, but it can be summed in this; that from his advent into public life in 1844 Sir John A. MacDonald was never out of it while his strength remained. He was repeatedly re-elected to the colonial legislature, sometimes from one borough and again from another, and on one occasion at least, was chosen the representative of two boroughs at once. He was in constant control of his party, having once attained it, and never suffered deep sleep for a moment. He was premier of Canada at various times and at the helm at the time of the uprising of the half-breed Riel in the northwest, a rebellion which he promptly and, some thought somewhat ferociously put down. He put it down, at any rate, with a brevity and vigor, those Canadian Sioux have remembered ever since.

Of all the Canadians, John A. MacDonald was the one most trusted and highly held in England. He was invited into the English privy council—the only Canadian ever given the honor—and was made a Knight Commander of the Bath and given the decoration. He was, too, one of the five commissioners representing England in the trouble with the United States growing out of the

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Railroad Commissioner Hickman Falls From an Electric Car.

St. Louis, May 29.—Yesterday at noon on one of the east bound Lindell railway electric trains on Washington avenue was a party of gentlemen, composed of Railroad Commissioners Breathitt and Hickman, State Grain Inspector O'Shea and Mr. Anthony, cashier of the grain department. They were returning from the funeral ceremonies of the daughter of Mr. Daniel O. Tracy, register of the grain department, at the Rock Church on Grand avenue. Mr. Anthony left the cars at Seventeenth street, but the remainder of the party continued east to Broadway where they all attempted to disembark with the train in motion. Captain O'Shea was the first to step off and lighted safely, but Captain Hickman was less fortunate. His feet slipped from under him on the wet street and forced him to continue his hold on the side bar of the car. This jerked him to the ground and whirled him between the cars under the front platform of the second car. Those who saw the accident were horrified and turned away to keep from seeing what they thought would be a terrible mauling, but Captain Hickman's presence of mind saved his life. He drew his feet up and literally kicked himself from under the car in time to escape all but one wheel, which caught his pantaloons at the hip and split them down several inches and painfully bruised his thigh. Captain O'Shea and others rushed to his assistance and tried to raise him up, but he was unable to stand and had to be carried to the sidewalk. It was first thought his thigh and ankle were dislocated, but after a few moments rest he was able to stand up and be supported to his room in the Laclede Hotel. His broadcloth suit was not only covered with mud, but was ground into and through the cloth, soiling his underwear. The suit had to be discarded and a new one purchased, and in the evening lying still all afternoon he was conveyed to the Union Depot and proceeded on home. Captain O'Shea, Commissioner Breathitt and all who witnessed the accident pronounce the escape of Captain Hickman a most remarkable one.

THE FACULTY GREW SORE.

Strawberry Shortcake Responsible for a Row in a Pennsylvania College.

Plymouth, Pa., May 30.—Strawberry shortcake is responsible for a serious disruption among the students at Wyoming Seminary, in Kingston, three miles from here. For a week past the faculty of the seminary have been regaled at supper each evening with shortcake. The students bore this as long as possible, but yesterday they contracted with a pastry cook to make a liberal supply for their use. Last evening's supper was no doubt the most remarkable which has ever been enjoyed in the old seminary, dozen students detailed for the work entered the dining hall, each one bearing aloft an immense strawberry cake. The appearance of the coveted delicacy was the signal for an outburst of cheers, and the cakes were quickly divided and distributed, especial care being taken to ostentatiously omit serving the professors. The unwonted absence of cake from the professors' dishes occasioned some facetious remarks, which at length broadened into jeers, compelling all of the members of the faculty to retire from the hall. At chapel this morning Principal L. I. Sprague, D. D., announces that Paul Brown, of Chicago, and James Brooks, of Scranton, the ring leaders in the affair, would be expelled. He requested them to retire from the chapel immediately, and, followed by seventy-five male students, they quitted the building. The students have decided that unless Dr. Sprague reconsiders his sentence they will leave in a body. Serruous efforts are being made to reach an amicable settlement.

THE GREATEST STRIKE.

Among the great strikes that of Dr. Miles in discovering his New Heart Cure has proven itself to be one of the most important. The demand for it has become astonishing. Already the treatment of heart disease is being revolutionized, and many unexpected cures effected. It soon relieves short breath, fluttering, pain in side, arm, shoulder, weak and hungry spells, oppression, swelling of ankles, smothering and heart dropsy. Dr. Miles' book on Heart and Nervous Diseases, free. The unequalled New Heart Cure is sold and guaranteed by A. T. Fleischmann, also his Restorative Nervine for headache, fits, spurs, hot flashes, nervous chills, opium habits, etc.

HAYES' MIND IMPAIRED.

New York, May 30.—Yesterday's World said that Ex-President R. B. Hayes' memory has been affected by the grip; that his power of recollection has almost completely vanished. It continued:

In a majority of cases loss of memory consequent upon an attack of an epidemic disease is only a temporary affliction, and the friends of Mr. Hayes all hope that his affliction will not be protracted. It is a present fact, however, that Mr. Hayes cannot converse for more than a minute at a time without absolutely forgetting the subject under consideration.

A cloud seems at intervals to obscure his mental vision and he must pause until it passes and leaves his mind free again. Even then on most occasions he has completely forgotten what he has just been talking about.

TO STEAL BARNUM'S BODY.

Ghouls Assail the Dead Showman's Tomb, But are Driven Off by Guards.

Ridgeport, Conn., May 30.—The two men who have been guarding the grave of the late Phineas T. Barnum had a startling experience with grave robbers last night. Although the guards were armed to the teeth, and were standing not more than 100 feet from the vault which contains the remains of the famous showman, it did not deter the ghouls from their unhallowed work. Three of them tackled the grave about 2 o'clock this morning, and had dug down a little more than a foot before the guards were aroused. Then they dodged the bullets which the guards fired at them and escaped with the aid of a fast horse which was waiting by the roadside, attached to a wagon in which they had intended to carry off their plunder. When the body was placed in the underground vault a big stone slab weighing two tons was placed over the mouth of the tomb making it apparently secure from the attacks of grave desecrators. This, as is evident, was known to the scoundrels who undertook to rob the grave this morning. They did not attempt to dig down into the grave, as is done in ordinary cases, but started their excavations at the side. They were fully equipped for the work, and in an hour, but for the presence of the guards, the body of the great showman would have been spirited away to be bartered for like ordinary merchandise.

The guards who have kept watch over the grave ever since Mr. Barnum died are John Callahan and George Blakeman. They were stationed in a little grove of trees, from which a commanding view of the grave was to be had. A little but was built for their protection. Last night was cloudy, dismal and just the kind of night to call for extra vigilance. It so happened that the two guards had not slept much yesterday and both were sleepy when they went on duty last night. As they had never seen anything like this before, a short nap after midnight. They were awakened by a noise which sounded as if made by a spade or a pick striking a stone. In the shadow of the Barnum monument the forms of three men could be seen. Two of them were bent over, busily at work and the other was standing guard. "Who's there?" called out Callahan. At that there was a startled exclamation from one of the men; the rays of dark lantern were flashed in the direction of the guards and then the light was suddenly extinguished.

"We found on going to the grave, after the ghouls ran off," said Callahan to-day, "a hole about four feet long which they had dug at the west side of the grave. The dark lantern, the rays of which we had seen, was lying on the upturned sods, having been either forgotten or dropped by the frightened scoundrels in their flight. Nothing else happened throughout the night."

Messrs. H. E. Bowser and Charles R. Brothwell, the agents of the Barnum estate, say that the watchmen are strictly reliable, and that their story is, no doubt, genuine. Brothwell placed the matter in the hands of the police. It is likely that a reward will be offered for them.

AGAINST THE RAILROAD.

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—The jury in the case of J. M. Seawell & Co. against the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis railway for discrimination, yesterday evening brought in a verdict against the railway, awarding the coal company $30 damages on each of 150 allegations of discrimination and overcharge. The coal company claimed that the Memphis hauled coal from Carbon Center, Mo., to Kansas for other companies, notably the Keith & Perry company, in which the Memphis is said to be interested, cheaper than it made the same haul for the Seawell company. The suit was brought in the state court. The railway company claimed that the state court did not have jurisdiction, inasmuch as a part of the haul was made through the state of Kansas, and it will take an appeal.

—It is now denied that Lord Lansdowne wishes to retire from the post of Viceroy of India. This is easier to believe than the story of his voluntary retirement from a place that pays him $200,000 a year in salary, with extras from the government amounting to more than this sum.

MARIE PRESCOTT DIVORCED.

Lexington, Ky., May 30.—Miss Marie Prescott Percell, the actress, was yesterday granted a decree of divorce from Wm. Percell at Paris, Ky. Miss Prescott was married in the Common Pleas court a year since, but the decision was not sustained, and was sent back for hearing. Percell did not resist her petition for divorce, but claimed that he was never married to her. Miss Prescott claimed that they were married in her room in New York City, by Rev. Vickers, but did not file Rev. Vicker's deposition, nor put in evidence a certificate of marriage. She said that she kept the marriage a secret for months because she was about to enter into a contract with a theatrical manager, and that, as unmarried ladies were more attractive to the general public and commanded larger salaries than married ones, she would have injured herself in a financial way. By the decree Miss Prescott is restored to her former name, Marie Prescott Burk. She is expected to spend her vacation in Millersburg, Bourbon County, and in September be married to R. D. McLean, at present her business associate.
